Salon Art + Design highlights we're still thinking about

Plenty caught the eye at the most recent installment of Salon Art + Design, held in New York at the Park Avenue Armory on November 9–13. One of these highlights, the Magnolia Grandiflora chandelier, dramatically graced the entrance to the fair with its mélange of hand-forged iron and ethereal cotton blooms crafted by the atelier Cox London. Sinuous, natural forms distinguish another standout, Parisian glass artist

Nathalie Ziegler-Pasqua's monumental L'eau de la mirror. Part of the Twenty-First Gallery in New York's showcase, it melds silvering glass from the historic Verrerie de Saint-Just with splashes of obsidian. Meanwhile, Paris architect and designer Charles Zana also made an impression with his assemblage of new collectibles, including the sleek, curving Rimbaud rocking chair fusing leather and steel and the funky Milos lamp pairing a silver travertine base with an ebony- and bronze-hued wicker shade.
